My domain expired! Can I still renew it?

Grace Periods for Expired Domains

Most domains can still be renewed within up to 30 days (maximum) after the expiration date. As a courtesy, we keep the domain for this grace period, but it will not be usable because of the "expired"-status.

However, this is depending on the type of domain, not all registries allow for post-expiration-renewal.

Please note: You can always use the "Simple Renewal" procedure to renew a domain, also in case the regular renewal is not possible at that moment for you!

After the mentioned grace period, the domain will be deleted automatically (most domains will then automatically enter the Redemption Grace Period \(RGP\)).

Once a domain has entered the RGP, a renewal still is possible, but then this is no longer a regular 'renewal', but a 'restore'. There are additional fees associated with this, you will find them in the price list.

To renew a domain, please visit 'Renew a Domain' in menu "Domains".
